Scott is a transactional attorney who represents commercial developers, home builders, land buyers and sellers, landlords, tenants, and local governments. A golf professional prior to attending law school, Scott also specializes in representing clients in golf course development and re-development matters. He gained extensive experience handling a wide variety of legal matters when he served as in-house counsel of the Fortune 500 company, KB Home, one of the nation's largest home builders. In addition, Scott's experience includes extensive transactional work with two national law firms in their Orlando offices.
