Biography

Brian focuses his practice on complex insurance coverage disputes with significant emphasis on litigation. Brian leads the firm's insurance coverage trial team. He successfully tried a $4 million insurance coverage claim in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York. Brian proved to the jury that the plaintiff's claims were fraudulent in every respect and the jury ultimately sustained the insurer's coverage denial. Recently, he successfully tried a Superstorm Sandy case in state court in Brooklyn, New York. There, he convinced a jury that the plaintiff's damages, alleged to be in excess of $1 million dollars, were the result of water, and not wind.

Both highlight what clients already know about Brian, that he can victoriously try a case regardless of venue, jurisdiction or geography.

Brian has represented and advised multi-national insurers on a range of issues, including priority of coverage; underwriting protocols; professional liability coverages; first-party loss; third-party coverage; life, health, and disability; damages and bad faith. His trial achievements are only surpassed by his appellate triumphs. Brian has prepared and argued appeals across New York State. His litigation skills result in insurance clients seeking his representation in mediations and arbitrations across the United States.

Brian also has significant experience defending businesses, municipalities and individuals against various tort claims, including New York's onerous Labor Law statutes. He has experience in representing businesses in commercial disputes. Brian counsels professionals with respect to risk avoidance. He also steps in to defend these same professionals in the event a claim is made against them. He developed and edited his prior firm's monthly professional liability publication.

Brian is a member of the Defense Research Institute (DRI) and the Erie County Bar Association. He has been active in Insurance & Risk Management Services and Professional Liability Committees with USLAW Network, Inc. He is a frequent author on topics related to his areas of practice and has presented on insurance coverage issues and trends across the United States and internationally. Recently, he conducted claims training at Lloyd's of London. He presented at the In-tAP 2013 Spring Meeting in Munich, Germany on run-off solutions in the United States.

Brian previously served as Board President of the Buffalo Alliance for Education. There he led an effort to build a strategic relationship between the community, businesses and schools in order to enhance and enrich student achievement in Western New York. Brian is the founder and president of the Little Match Girl Foundation, a nonprofit organization that focuses on helping children in need by collecting and providing them with school supplies, essential seasonal items, holiday gifts, and other donations in collaboration with their schools and other community organizations.

When Brian is not chasing after his two young children, he is an amateur carpenter and beekeeper.
